

Jamei, psychiatrist and Director General of the Gaza Community Mental Health Programme (GCMHP), and Dr. Sara Roy, on the human rights and mental health crisis in the Gaza Strip. We will learn more about current developments in Gaza through the lens of personal experiences and the work of GCMHP in providing critical mental health services to alleviate trauma and instill hope for the future. What can be done in the US to help keep hope alive?

Yasser Abu-Jamei, MD, MSc is a psychiatrist and General Director of GCMHP, the leading Palestinian non-governmental organization providing mental health services to the Gaza Strip. He holds degrees from universities in the UK, Germany, Lithuania and Gaza and has received honors for his work developing the mental health sector in the Gaza Strip. His research has focused on the psychological impact of the ongoing violence and blockade in Gaza.

Sara Roy (Ed.D. Harvard University) is a senior research scholar at the Center for Middle Eastern Studies specializing in the Palestinian economy, Palestinian Islamism and the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. She began her research on Gaza in 1985 and has since authored over 100 publications, including The Gaza Strip: The Political Economy of De-development and Failing Peace: Gaza and the Palestinian-Israeli Conflict. Her latest book is Unsilencing Gaza: Reflections on Resistance (Pluto Press, 2021).

Dr. Abu-Jamei's "Trauma and Hope" nation-wide tour is sponsored by the Massachusetts-based Gaza Mental Health Foundation, Inc. For more information or to make a donation: www.gazamentalhealth.org.

Co-sponsored by the International Human Rights Clinic at Harvard Law School, the Religion, Conflict, and Peace Initiative at Harvard Divinity School, and The Palestine Program for Health and Human Rights at the Harvard FXB Center.

The event will be recorded and available on YouTube.

Student Opportunity: Spring Climate Week Planning Team

Student Opportunity: Spring Climate Week Planning Team

Religion and Public Life, in collaboration with other partners at HDS, is looking for three currently enrolled HDS students to support Spring Climate programming. If you are passionate about climate justice, interested in expanding the climate conversation at HDS, and available to support a week of Climate-focused programming taking place April 10–14th, please consider joining our planning team!

We have a few paid positions available (up to 25 hours, $20 an hour, flexible work schedule). Apply by Friday, February 3rd using this Google Form. If you have any questions or are interested in volunteering in some capacity, but not for the hourly role, please contact Anna Del Castillo to get involved: annadelcastillo@hds.harvard.edu.

Meet Jews for Liberation, the HDS Student Group Bringing Politics and Spirituality Together

December 1, 2022

By Ellie S. Klibaner-Schiff and Mariah M. Norman at The Harvard Crimson

Jews for Liberation, a student organization composed primarily of Jewish students at Harvard Divinity School, describes itself in its Instagram bio as a “spiritual and political space for anti-Zionist and non-Zionist Jews at Harvard.”

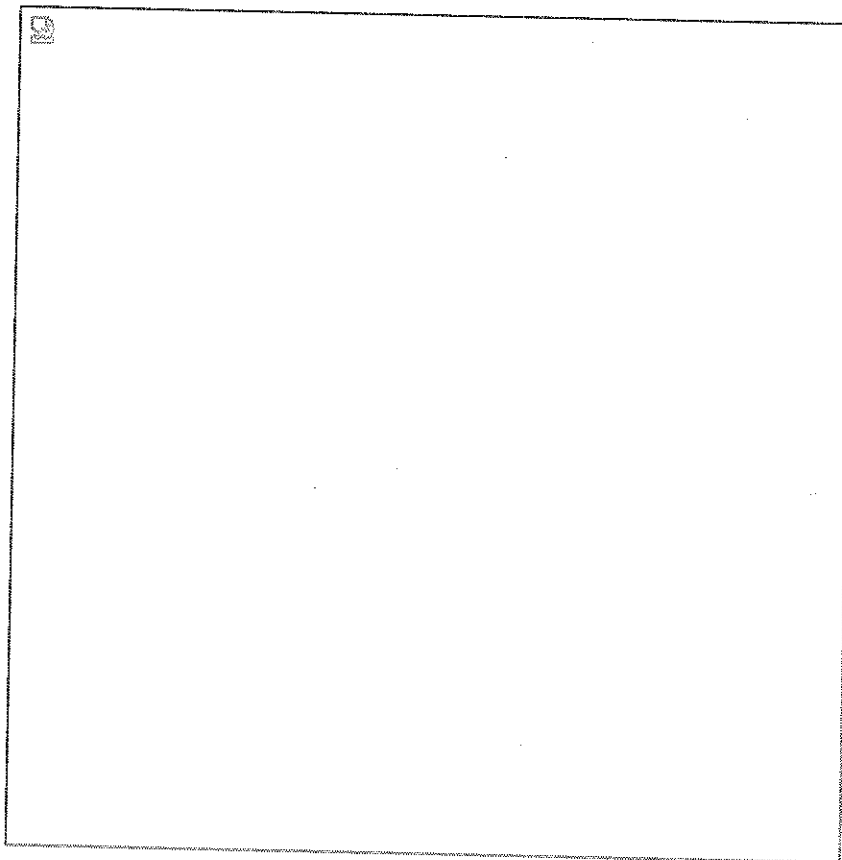

Members of the group emphasize that politics and religion are not necessarily separable. “My political activism, for me, feels very rooted in my Jewish identity,” Rubinson says. “No religious space is apolitical,” Lovett-Graff says. “For Jewish spaces to say that they’re devoid of politics in some way is a political stance.”

Within the web of varied Jewish spaces and political spaces on campus, Jews for Liberation fills a specific niche at the intersection of the religious and the political.

“Our intended goal is to create an expansive space in which we center Jews who are most marginalized by Jewish organizations and communities,” Lovett-Graff says. Many Jews for Liberation members are involved with diverse Jewish groups on and off campus. “I belong to multiple different Jewish communities, and move between different Jewish spaces,” Rubinson says. “But I feel like that’s a part of the work I try to do, to be a little bit of a boundary crosser, an interconnected person.”

RPL's Religious Literacy Framework in Action: Hamline University and The Muslim Public Affairs Council

Earlier this month, Hamline University in St. Paul Minnesota chose to not renew adjunct instructor Erika López Prater's contract after she showed students a 14th-century image of the Prophet Muhammad in her art history course. You can read more about the initial incident here.

A flurry of articles and opinion pieces have followed. Harvard Professor of Indo-Muslim and Islamic Religion and Cultures Ali Asani stated that many assumptions at play "show illiteracy about religion," and the Muslim Public Affairs Council put out a statement referencing RPL religious literacy frameworks in its response to the events:

"Even if it is the case that many Muslims feel uncomfortable with such depictions, Dr. Prater was trying to emphasize a key principle of religious literacy: religions are not monolithic in nature, but rather, internally diverse. This principle should be appreciated in order to combat Islamophobia, which is often premised on flattening out Islam and viewing the Islamic tradition in an essentialist and reductionist manner. The professor should be thanked for her role in educating students, Muslim and non-Muslim alike, and for doing so in a critically empathetic manner."

You can read the full statement here.

Event Recordings

Bears Ears is Listening: We Are Still Here and the Land is Calling Us Back

At this event Cynthia Wilson, (RPL Native and Indigenous Rights Fellow) and Angelo Baca (Cultural Resources Coordinator for Utah Diné Bikéyah) spoke about their experiences as Indigenous community organizers helping to secure the protection of Bears Ears National Monument. Wilson and Baca also discuss lessons learned from listening, organizing, mobilizing, and planning from a placed-based approach while engaging local Tribal voices, advancing community priorities and goals of ancestral land protection. This event took place on April 28, 2022.

Please "reply" to this email.

Note:

The purpose of the email is to clarify your involvement in the many and wide-ranged scandals related to Cleveland County Government or that it is believed that you would have an interest in stating your knowledge and position on the content of this communication.

It is my belief that every adult person in County Government, news media, or just a regular citizen deserves to be informed on what is happening in our daily lives, where our tax dollars are spent and are they spent wisely, And other information that is of high public interest. It is my view that everyone is either a part of the solution or part of the problem. And, it is not what you say that counts, it is what you do about it. Silence, in by opinion, is the breeding ground for corruption.

I have decided that I will leave no stone unturned in exposing corruption wherever I find it and let the people know about it. If for any reason you feel that the truth is misrepresented in this article/communication, please let me know. As it is always my intent to disseminate factual information to the public. And to use all means necessary to bring the public to action on the matter.

Thank you in advance for your response.

Bully Proofing and Conflict Resolution

Traits like Fairness, Respect, Honesty, Caring, and Responsibility are incompatible with bullying behaviors. They also help form a vocabulary for conflict resolution. Students who understand and value those 5 traits are learning to be members of the community.

Photocard Books for K-3 and Grades 4-5

Key to Kelso's character building program are two books depicting five character traits. Each book shows Fairness, Respect, Honesty, Caring, and Responsibility being ignored, then being practiced. Each trait is shown in three contexts: in class, on the playground, and at home.

Seeing, Hearing, and Empathizing

Students are asked to discuss how the five traits look and sound, as well as how people feel in different situations.

The Kit Also Includes:

Leader's Guide with lessons, activities, and printables for K-3 and 4-5, video lessons, posters, plush puppets, and a storybook.

Updated School Security solution February 9 @ 1:00pm ET Crisis Event Lockdown Alert Status System

Free 45 minute webinar for you and your security team to learn about a newly updated innovative, cost-effective and easy way to instantly notify responders and provide room by room condition status during daily incidents and crisis events. Whether reporting daily incidents like irate parent, missing person or disturbance, you can immediately notify your team and deploy your response procedures and tracking. The status condition for any room or the Alert Levels for your entire facility are easily configurable to match your specific requirements.

Originally designed for schools, Sielox CLASS is now being deployed in a variety of facilities and applications.

Updated School Security solution

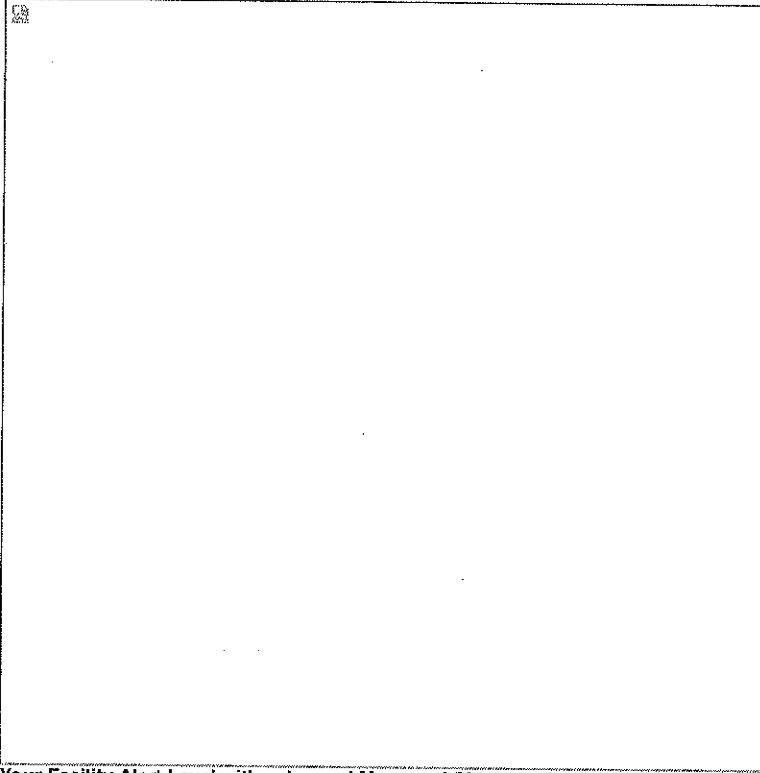

Learn about CLASS platform performance enhancements and new features designed from extensive customer feedback. See the new interactive 3-D floor plans and chat function extended from users to locations and conditions colors to pinpoint issues. CLASS can now be installed on your Linux server or Virtual Machine (VM).

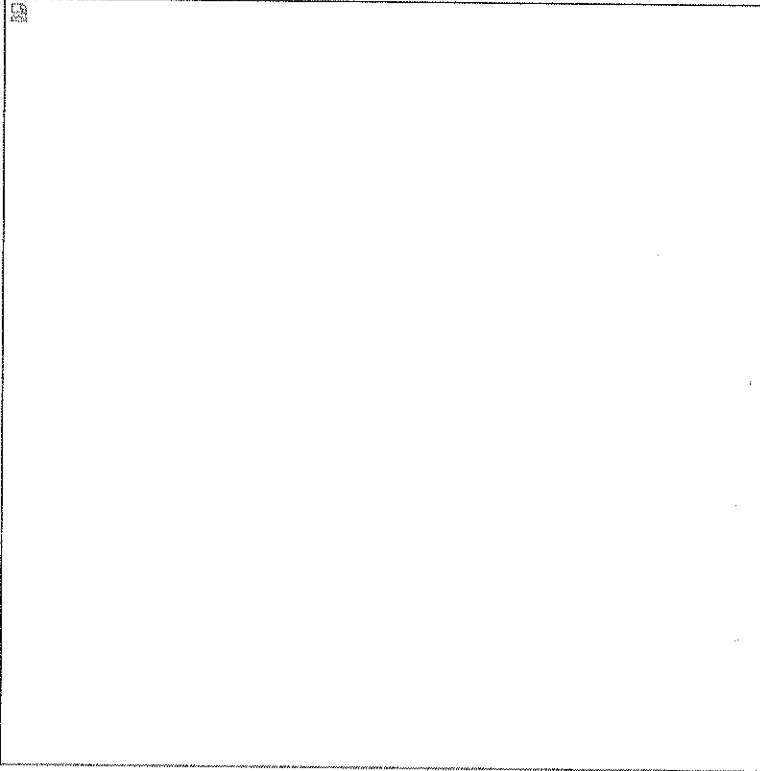

During the webinar we will cover:

- Solution design criteria
- User experiences
- Technology requirements
- Users and Responsibilities
- Configuration to match your procedures
- Alert Levels, Condition Colors and Notifications
- Chat communications
- Pop up instructions
- Integration for Lock down, Communications
- Reports
- Live interactive demonstration

Spend your security budget wisely

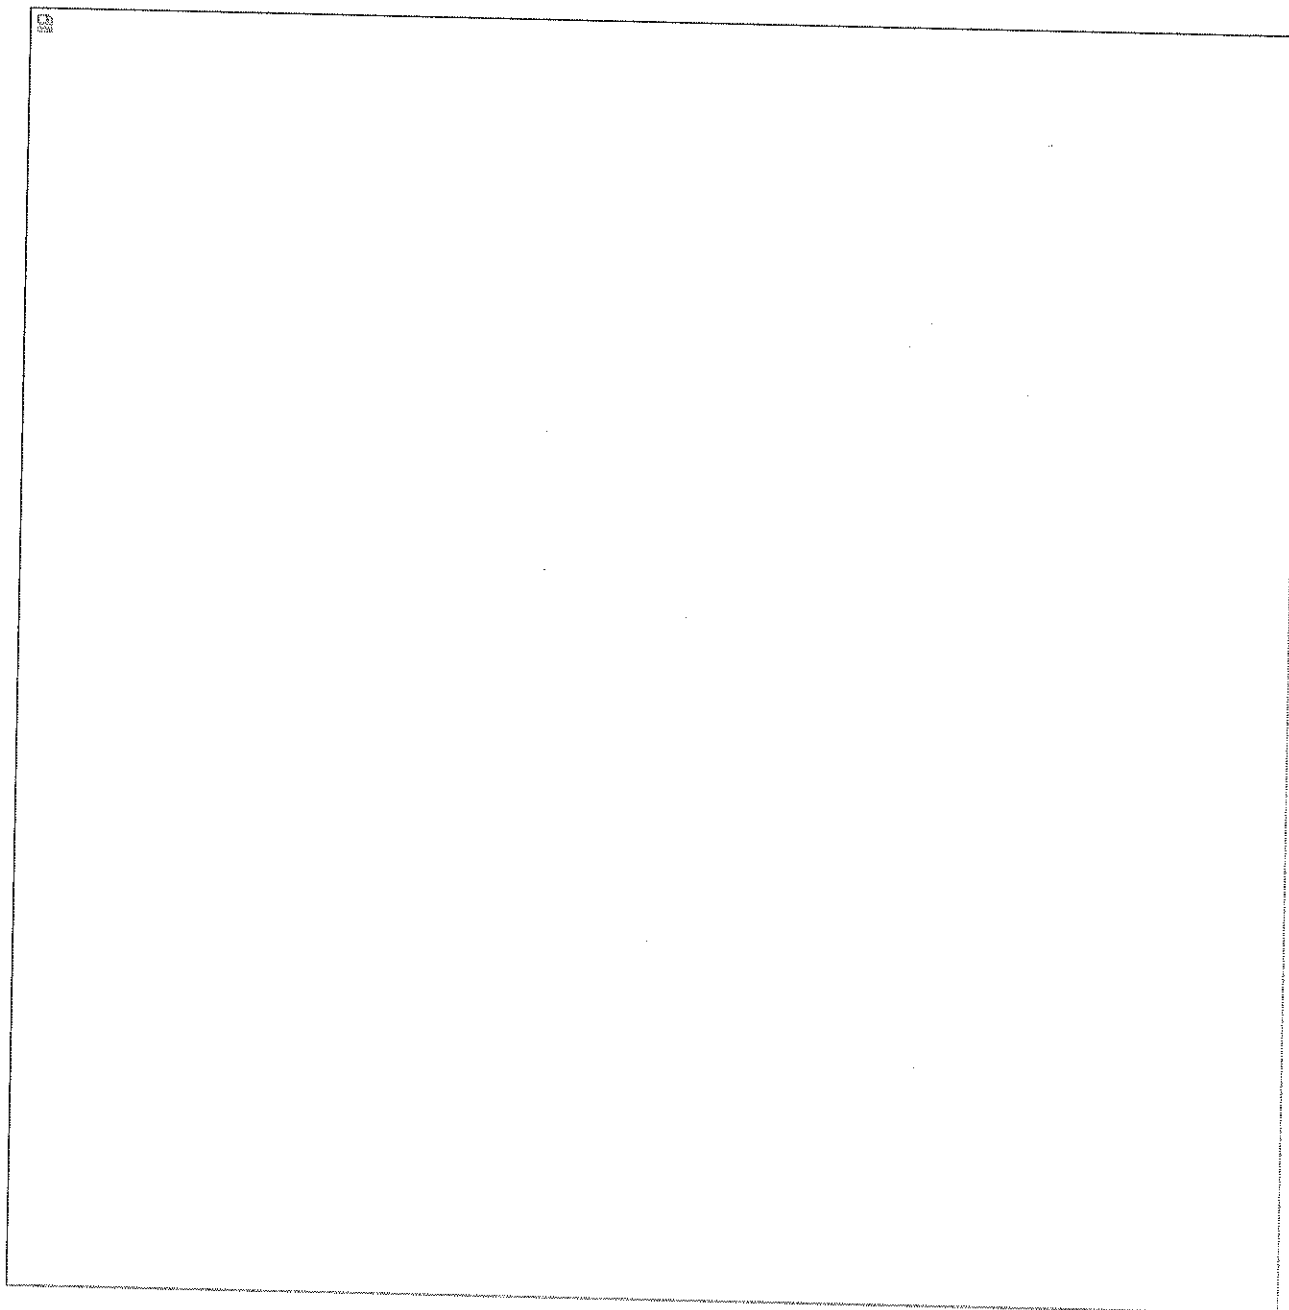

In light of today's headline news on crisis events, please join us for an important webinar about daily and emergency communications using Sielox Class.

Sielox Class - Crisis Lockdown Alert Status System – is a patented site-deployed solution that improves emergency notification and response capabilities, saving time and potentially saving lives. CLASS is a highly effective, scalable and flexible resource to issue alerts and best manage threatening situations. CLASS also enables awareness for other important daily incidents including medical, suspicious person, irate parent, bullying, maintenance and more.

CLASS is the only emergency notification and response solution that can instantly initiate an alert condition, enable communications with First Responders, and visually track and report status in real time on a room-by-room basis. During emergency situations, CLASS greatly improves response accuracy and effectiveness, saving time and helping responders prioritize their actions.

Staff, management or designated Initiators can issue an emergency alert to notify responders of conditions in real time while communicating status via one of eight programmable color-coded conditions. Occupants within the facility can then report status at their specific location enabling responders to view the detailed facility maps with compiled room-by-room color-coded conditions that update in real-time as the situation evolves. A chat feature enables two-way communications between individuals or groups and first responders to exchange detailed information or instructions. Sielox Class can automatically send email or text alerts, pop-up instructions or detailed evacuation plans specific to condition or alert level changes. CLASS is configurable to match your safety plans and procedures.

The Promise of MTSS in Helping Every Student Succeed

By STOPit Solutions, Jan 31, 2023 9:45:00 AM

Schools are at the frontline of the student mental health crisis. It's no secret that youth mental health is a top priority for educators--and one that can have a dramatic impact on academic outcomes. Interventions for at-risk students are often triggered when teachers spot signs of academic, behavioral, or mental health problems--such as poor grades, bullying, absenteeism, being withdrawn, or acting out in class.

The Promise of MTSS in Helping Every Student Succeed

By STOPit Solutions, Jan 31, 2023 9:45:00 AM

Schools are at the frontline of the student mental health crisis. It's no secret that youth mental health is a top priority for educators--and one that can have a dramatic impact on academic outcomes. Interventions for at-risk students are often triggered when teachers spot signs of academic, behavioral, or mental health problems--such as poor grades, bullying, absenteeism, being withdrawn, or acting out in class.

About this Webinar

Schools protected with a layered approach to security along with safety software that speak to one another can equip staff to respond confidently and efficiently to acts of violence and other emergencies when seconds count. With a multitude of suggestions coming from many sources and new technologies, assessing your own school's safety and security can be overwhelming. Where do you begin and what solutions are the best use of your budget? Then, once you have a solid foundation, how can you effectively build on it?

In this webinar, we are joined by experts from the Partner Alliance for Safer Schools (PASS), as we dig into best practices on securing schools and explore safety software that integrates with each other to maximize your emergency response times and your budget.

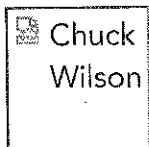

Key Takeaways

- Overview of the PASS guidelines and its five critical layers of physical security
- Explore how to prioritize practical school hardening and safety software needs
- Highlight recently developed school safety software and technology

solutions including physical security integrations

Schools protected with a layered approach to security along with safety software that speak to one another can equip staff to respond confidently and efficiently to acts of violence and other emergencies when seconds count. With a multitude of suggestions coming from many sources and new technologies, assessing your own school's safety and security can be overwhelming. Where do you begin and what solutions are the best use of your budget? Then, once you have a solid foundation, how can you effectively build on it?

In this webinar, we are joined by experts from the Partner Alliance for Safer Schools (PASS), as we dig into best practices on securing schools and explore safety software that integrates with each other to maximize your emergency response times and your budget.

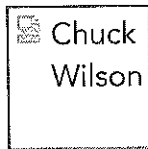

Key Takeaways

- Overview of the PASS guidelines and its five critical layers of physical security
- Explore how to prioritize practical school hardening and safety software needs
- Highlight recently developed school safety software and technology

solutions including physical security integrations

Dating Violence: What Educators Need to Know

Creating a Connected and Safe School Environment

Teen dating violence has become an increasing epidemic. Per the CDC, about 1 in 12 teens experience physical dating violence¹. We know that educators are in a unique position to recognize signs of abuse, have conversations with students and refer to support if necessary. Join us for an informative webinar focused on identifying the warning signs, the vital role trusted adults play in understanding this type of abuse and learn about a new training that equips educators to have difficult conversations around dating violence.

The Presenters

Dr. Julie Allison, author, and professor at Pittsburgh State University will share her expertise on dating violence including recognizing the signs, motivations and students at
